FORKLIFTING

To lift and move trays of slabs with lift trucks (forklifts) or building site cranes, it is important to slide the forks into the long side and carefully position them at the centre of the load, widening the forks to their maximum distance to support the entire depth of the pallet. To avoid damaging the content of the crates, it is necessary to use a lift truck with a capacity that is suitable for the weight to carry. To move crates measuring 1200x2400mm, it is necessary to use forks that are at least 120 cm long, and for crates measuring 1200x1800mm, 1200x2400mm and 1200x3240mm, forks at least 180 cm in length are required.

MANUAL LIFTING

Weight limits for each person set forth in current local regulations in the country Where the building site is located. In some cases, it could be necessary to only use Mechanical lifting equipment. Position the packaging near the surface to be clad. Lift the slab on the long side and bring it to a vertical position.

Maintain proper posture to avoid straining your lower back. Wear specialized gloves to enhance Grip and prevent abrasions. When moving slabs, especially those with holes or openings, and When installing them on walls, utilize special frames with suction pads, such as those made by Raimondi, montolit, sigma italia, and siri. Ensure the systems used are appropriate for the slab's Dimensions. Be mindful of the slab's weight and ensure you have enough personnel to install it Safely and correctly.
